Austro-German and Bulgarian Armies
Are Gathering About Former Serb
Capital—Allied Transports
Sighted Off Bulgarian
Coast.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Nov. 2.—Public interest is divided today between Premier Asquith's speech in the house of commons and Rumania's reported intention to throw her lot with the entente allies. News coming by way of Paris tends support to growing impressions that Rumania is preparing to intervene in the war.

Organize New Classes.

By royal decree, new classes of Roumanian recruits are being mobilized.
Vienna reports that "a grave situation" may arise between Austria and Rumania in connection with proposed use of the lower Danube to transport Russian troops to Bulgaria.
Little news comes direct from Bucharest, as the censorship is enforced so strictly that even ordinary messages are stopped, but it is known the agitation in favor of war is spreading through the army.The Austrian, German and Bulgarian armies are drawing the net more closely about Nish. In the south, the French assert they have inflicted considerable losses on the Bulgarians, who are reported to have been thrown back on the right bank of the Vardar.
The great Italian general offensive,
launched a fortnight ago, has broken down, the Austrian army declared today, after a loss of 150,000 men by the attacking forces.

Allies' Transports Arrive.

Amsterdam, via London, Nov. 2.—
A new Anglo-French expedition to the Balkans is announced by the Telegraph. This newspaper publishes a telegram from Sofia stating that British and French transports with troops have appeared off Kavala, Greece.Kavala is on the north coast of the Aegean sea in Greece about twenty miles west of the Bulgarian border.
It is eighty miles northeast of the Greek port of Saloniki where first detachments of British and French troops were landed for the Serbian campaign.Kavala is the nearest Greek port to Gallipoli peninsula, and might be selected as a landing place in case French and British troops were withdrawn from the peninsula for service against Bulgaria. A Berlin dispatch yesterday said troops now on the Serbian front brought in by way of Saloniki, had been sent from the peninsula.A few miles north from Kavala is the railroad which runs from Saloniki
to the Bulgarian port of Dedeağatch.
Greece More Friendly.
London, Nov. 2.—Official Greek circles, an attitude more favorable to the entente allies apparently has been assumed.The correspondent at Athens reports that, simultaneously with official denial of reports of Greece's hostility toward the entente powers,
there is a change in tone of the ministerial press, which is now publishing articles in favor of the allies. These articles presumably have been written by the government.Notwithstanding the drift of opinion, it is maintained that neutrality of Greece will be adhered to as long as possible. The correspondent says there are indications that any attempt to change the policy of the government would result in the fall of the cabinet.

Italian Attack Lags.

Vienna, Nov. 2.—The general Italian offensive which has been in progress for a fortnight, has been met successfully by the Austrians, the war office announced today, following the decline in the Italian attack.
The third Italian attack against our coastal front, which began on October 18, and was renewed with fresh troops on October 28, begins to fail.
The enemy advanced to the northwest
to the northern edge of the lofty Dobro plateau with strong forces which, however, were weak at several points.
The attack was in vain.Though the battle may again fling up the attempted offensive on the main front with at least twenty-five infantry divisions (800,000 men)
with brave troops, the Italian command on the unshakable wall of our victorious troops.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—Cacak, an important railroad junction point in Serbia
about thirty miles to the northwest of Krakuevatz, has been occupied by the Austro-German forces engaged in the Serbian invasion, it was officially announced today.SLUGGER'S VICTIMS

informed by a diplomat that the Secretary of state in Vienna received a message from the Papal Nuncio at Vien-na, Monsignor Scapinelli. The diplo-

ON TWO STATE JOBSOwen Decides He Is Entitled to Salaries of Both Offices, Amounting to $3,500.Madison, Wis., Nov. 2.—That F. W.
Kubasta of Merrill is eligible to hold the offices of deputy commissioner of insurance and chief assistant fire marshal at a salary of $3,500 a year, is the opinion of Attorney General Owen to M. J. Cleary, commissioner of insurance. The question was raised as to whether this salary could be paid
to a man who holds two offices. Mr.
Kubasta is a member of the state fire
marshal's office with that of the insurance department. Shortly after the adjournment of the legislature Mr. Cleary appointed Mr. Ku-
basta, giving him a salary of $2,000
as deputy commissioner of insurance
and $1,500 annually as chief assistant fire marshal.In his opinion Mr. Owen points out that the salary of Mr. Kubasta was fixed by the appointing officer pursuant to legislative authority conferred upon the appointing officer by the legislature. The question was raised as to whether this salary could be paid
to a man who holds two offices. Mr.
Kubasta is a member of the state fire
marshal's office with that of the
insurance department. Shortly
after the adjournment of the legislature Mr. Cleary appointed Mr. Ku-
basta, giving him a salary of $2,000
as deputy commissioner of insurance
and $1,500 annually as chief assistant
fire marshal."From this it necessarily follows logically, and as it seems to me, conclusively, that the salary of the deputy commissioner of insurance was not fixed prior to his appointment and under the authority of the Ryan case, Mr. Kubasta is eligible to hold the office and draw the increased salary.
Even though the entire salary be construed to attach to the office of deputy commissioner of insurance," concludes the attorney general's opinion. Mr. Kubasta will draw two times the salary today, which has been held up awaiting this legal opinion.DATE FOR FREIGHT

Madison, Wis., Nov. 2.—The inter-

investigate the charge of the merchants of Beloit, Janesville and Madison that the freight charges for this territory on interstate shipments are excessive. Word has just been received here that these cases will be heard in Madison Dec. 13. The commission will send Francis J. Dow, one of the senior examiners to take testimony in the case. At torney John S. Burchmore of Chicago will represent the shippers in this litigation. The complaint is against all railroads operating in this territory.It is expected that practically at the same time the Wisconsin railroad commission will be ready to take up the complaint of J. N. Tittemore of Oshkosh alleging excessive rates on shipments in nearly every section of the state. In the later case many of the cities of the Fox River valley and northern Wisconsin have joined.MAGAZINE AGENT IS

ON TRACTION SALEVote on Municipal Ownership of Traction Lines—Question One of Long Standing.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Detroit, Mich., Nov. 2.—This city, if the municipal ownership plan being voted on today carries, will be the first in the United States to own and operate its entire street railway system. For many years Detroit has resisted with arguments for and against the plan. Chicago and Cleveland adopted settlement ordinances which eliminated, for the time being, at least, municipal ownership. In San Francisco and Seattle only a comparatively small proportion of the mileage is owned and operated by the people. To carry, the plan must receive 60 per cent of the affirmative vote.For years all efforts of the local traction company to obtain new franchises have failed. As a result, while the population has increased with great rapidity, street car service has not kept pace, and the referendum therefore is said to have aroused the personal interest of most of the voters. The lines have been operating, for the most part, on a day-to-day agreement, with ticket selling seven for a quarter at all times except during the rush periods, when eight for a quarter tickets must be honored.
Only on a few miles of track the old Pittsburgh three-cent fare lines are the eight-for-a-quarter tickets good at all hours.If municipalization carries, the traction system will be managed by two commissioners serving without pay.
They will be James Couzens, until reportedly the president of the Ford Motor Car company, and John P. Dodge of the Dodge Motor Car company.
James Wilkie of the Parks-Davis
Chemical company.Criticism of the plan includes opinion that it will make a political football out of the lines. To this answer it is made that the commissioners will have complete power, that the mayor pledged to retain in power the commissioners named, and that the commissioners have agreed to stay in office. Labor organizations have objected on two grounds, namely, that the plan will invalidate the arbitration agreement between the company and the union, and that the civil service proviso of the plan will weaken
if it does not disrupt the union.That the voters do not know precisely what they will cost is another objection raised. This answer of the lines by Prof. E. W. Hentsch gave the value of the property at $17, 000,000. At one time the company declined a municipal offer of $2,255,000 for the lines. According to the present plan the valuation will be fixed by the circuit court of Wayne county (Detroit). The plan provides that a rate of fare sufficient to meet all obligations shall be charged, and it has been urged in some quarters that this might result in a higher rate.WAR NEWS OF ONE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 2.—Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and Secretary Lansing held their first conversation today since settlement of the Arabic case, and took under consideration the questions growing out of the sinking of the Lusitania last May, with the loss of more than one hundred American lives.The plan of reaching an agreement without exchange of formal notes, but of informal conversations, worked so well in handling the Arabic case, that it is now to be followed in endeavoring to solve the Lusitania problem.
Today's conversation was only an approach to the various issues involved in the controversy and it was indicated that it would take some time to reach a common ground of basis for settlement.There is no disposition at the state department to hasten a settlement, but to give every opportunity for full and frank exchange of views. Originally the American government demanded disavowal of the act, reparation and assurances that the incident would be used for the purpose of improving the submarine regulations, not torpedo ships without warning as in the case of the settlements of the Arabic case.The question of disavowal is being set with many complexities since the commander acted under instructions existing at the time. The latter is considered to have been disposed of through the published instructions to German submarine commanders, not torpedo ships without warning as

ON SUFFRAGE TODAYMen of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Cast Ballots On Equal Voting Privileges.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Nov. 2.—Today the men of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts will say whether whether their women shall be given the vote.
A heavy vote in New York and Massachusetts and a light vote in Pennsylvania are expected. The suffrage campaign has been a long one, but early this morning suffragists were at every polling place to buttonhole the men as they arrived and give their final plea for a favorable decision.The antis also were represented generally, but their campaign has been the form of bill board,
street car and hand bill statements
and personal propaganda work.
Should Pennsylvania vote for suffrage, the "Justice Bell," duplicate of the Liberty Bell, which has been carried about the state for months with its shackled clapper, will be unshackled and will be rung in Philadelphia.Submission of the suffrage question to New York voters today comes sixty-seven years after Susan B. Anthony first took up the fight for women's rights. The constitutional amendment has been before the legislature and the vote today is a legislative referendum to the people.
Governor Whitman will vote "yes."
Mr. Whitman has been pro-suffrage in the past.In Massachusetts the men are to vote on the constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote. The suffrage campaign in this state has been more conservative than in the other two although several big pa-des have been staged in Boston, similar to the big one in New York and those in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.New York, Nov. 2.—Some 8,000 women arose long before daylight and when the polls opened at six o'clock this morning were on duty in every election district of New York City, as watchers for the cause of woman suffrage. Proposed changes in the constitution were the only state-wide issues before the voters of New York today.The suffrage question appears on the ballot as a distinct proposition
calling for a separate vote.Columbus, Nov. 2.—Fair weather, which was reported to be general
throughout Ohio, caused politicians here this morning to predict that the suffrage campaign in today's election, though no state ticket was being voted on. The city's chief interest in result was almost equally divided between state-wide propositions and local contests.SEVENTEEN PERSONS HURT

on the part of E. E. Kepler, who is guardian ad litem for the defendant,
who was committed to the Richland county insane asylum in November of 1914, as the action involves the question of alimony, the elder Kepler having an estate of some 800 acres of land and a large amount of personal property, in all estimated to be worth from $50,000 to $100,000.The plaintiff avers in the complaint that she has cared for an incompetent daughter of the defendant by a former wife, ever since their marriage in 1887.Judge Grimm granted the divorce and alimony to the amount of $11,000 and the costs of the action. Judge Bassett was the attorney for the plaintiff.Judge Grimm on Monday disposed of a number of cases. The first on the docket was that of William Hamer

had ceased on the Mexican battlefield.Withdraws at Daybreak.
After four desperate attacks on Agua Prieta which kept the Carranza were reported by General Calles as Villa launched his fiercest attack and the combined fire of rifles, machine guns and cannon, probably surpassed in violence any battle ever heard of.

AUTHORITIES HERE ARE NOT IN FAVOR OF CHICAGO PLAN

Campaign to Drive Out Undesirables From Chicago to Smaller Cities to Mean Action Here.

Janesville will not welcome any of Chicago's undesirables in connection with a referendum movement that is being given publicity through the Osborn Road, commissioner of public welfare at Chicago. From press notices issued by Miss Rowe, a spokeswoman of the "bums," criminals, vagrants, transients, hobos and crooks, out of Chicago to distribute them through the country districts in hopes that they may change their ways and mode of securing a livelihood will be tried out.

It appears that there is a campaign on foot in Chicago for the police and authorities to get rid of the nomadic population somehow and somewhere. It is safe to say that none of the "scum of Chicago" will be met with the arms of welcome in Janesville, but more likely with the sight of the jail or the wood-pile at the county. According to Miss Rowe, Chicago has been the dumping ground for undesirable characters who come to that city in search of free food and lodging. Quoting Miss Rowe, "This great municipality (Chicago) has enough problems of its own to cope with without being forced to cope with situations brought about by the influx of undesirable people from the entire middle western territory. Then the word 'welfare' is used to forward the subject that the policy of Chicago chasing the vagrants and other classes, should be met with instant approval, just far enough so that they will not be 'accessible' to Chicago."

When shown the facts this morning, Chief of Police Champion expressed an opinion that Miss Rowe, or "whoever she was" and better be making her efforts along lines of improvement within Chicago instead of trying to "shove off" Chicago's scum on other cities. "It is safe to say that three out of every five vagrants, tramps or hobos that the police have experience with, which are the worst types, are born and raised in Chicago. If five vagrants came into the station at this moment for lodging, it would be a safe bet that at least three of them would register their homes in Chicago. Chicago produces them, and I think Chicago should take care of them. This idea of chasing your undesirables out of the city is another one cause of the tramp and unemployed evil. They are tramps in Chicago, and they will be tramps when they get out of Chicago and the majority of these Chicago bums would not work at any price," said the chief.

"Almost daily we have calls for laboring men, employers wanting workers at good wages, under favorable working conditions, but you will not find one out of ten who will check right back again if the police can do it. We certainly have enough trouble in Janesville with our own unemployed and vagrants. Chicago conditions, I believe, make it impossible now let Chicago adjust or improve her conditions to care for them instead of chasing them out to the smaller cities."

Judge H. L. Maxfield, when asked of his opinion of the system, stated that the facts showed clearly that the system of caring for the criminal and criminal stands in need of a method to check and secure profitable employment. "The problem of an idle man is a large one with many angles and enforced employment in this matter is not a question of obtaining work, but one of wanting to work and I cannot see the logic of such a system of sending Chicago undesirables to burden other cities. If I think that the commitment law will prevent a heavy invasion of vagrants to Rock county."

When Sheriff A. O. Chamberlain was asked about it, he smiled and said, "I've got thirty cords of wood, plenty of saws and can obtain a rock pile, so if any of those Chicago bums come around, they will find work and a chance to reform without fail. It will be the best of them."

The plans as presented by Louise Rowe, for the reform of Chicago nomads, are given as follows:

(1) The administration will utilize every agency to give Chicago citizens preference wherever employment is offered in public or private services. Extra work in city departments will be exclusively to citizens.

(2) All organizations to give aid to the residents of the city. We will reduce and not increase, provisions formerly made for non-resident homeless men. A work test in the municipal work yard will be required of all applicants of the municipal lodging house.

(3) The administration will instruct the police to make special efforts to prevent the return of the criminal, the beggar and the vagrant who has been accustomed to exploit the city under the guise of unemployment. Fair warning is given to these classes to keep out of Chicago.

(4) The administration advises young men and women in other cities without employment not to come to Chicago seeking employment during the winter. In view of the conditions under which young people are compelled to live if employment is not immediately forthcoming, the city cannot retain the name of being an honorable host without advising against this.

WATER MAINS WERE COMPLETED MONDAY

City Workmen Under Water Department Have Laid 3,472 Feet of Main Since September.

Monday all water mains were completed by city workmen and a total of 3,472 feet of cast iron pipe have been laid since September first, when the work was started. The city has laid all first quality cast iron pipe in the maintenance expense is expected. The streets on which pipe has been laid and the number of feet are as follows: Galena, 385; Rock, 285; Wisconsin, 604; Oakland avenue, 458; South High, 210; Lincoln, 401; Glenn street, six-inch pipe, 320; Palm, 550, and Monroe, 270. Many residents on these streets have already made connections from the mains and now are using water.

NEGRO AT THE JAIL FOR STABBING FRAY

Dick Washington, Colored Man of Beloit, Held For Trial

November 12th.

Dick Washington, a negro, of Beloit, was committed to the county jail last evening to await his trial on the charge of assault with intent of doing great bodily harm, before the Beloit municipal court on November 12th. Washington entered a plea of not guilty to the complaint yesterday afternoon for examination which was conducted by District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie. Louis Beecher, another Beloit colored man, was given six months when he pleaded guilty to assaulting Robert Lowery of Rockford Saturday night. He was paroled out under the Huber law at Beloit Monday.

According to Washington, when questioned at the county jail, "He done neber stick that knife into that 'stool-pigeon' Lowery and was fifty feet away when the shooting affair occurred at the home of a Beloit negro, Washington explained that Lowery always bore the reputation of being a 'stool-pigeon,' which is a term denoting a person who reveals secrets or crimes to authorities or police. According to the prisoner, 'der was three couples of Beloit colored people playing pool, not poker, and on leaving the women and the boys and Lowery and 'somebody put der steel into him as he was running away.' Washington some time ago, it is alleged, stabbed Phil Reed, before the Nan Brown arson case, and Reed was sentenced to state's prison in Joliet, Ill.

FOOTVILLE

Footville, Nov. 1.—S. T. Shanley, cashier of the Hollandale state bank and family and Thomas McGinnity and wife visited J. Merwin Beck, Saturday.

Emory Rose has gone to Beloit, where he will work in the Berlin Works.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldock of Janesville were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Evans.

Miss Wanda Schroeder of Janesville spent Sunday with her cousin, Miss Lula Long.

William Pankhurst and grand-daughter, Little Esther Johnson, returned on Saturday after several weeks' sojourn in California and report a very pleasant trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kovacs of Janesville spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kovacs.

Friends of Mrs. Mary Wells will regret to learn that she is not in the best of health. However, she was able to spend the day at the home of her son, F. P. Wells.

Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Day have returned from Elkhorn where they were called by the sudden death of the former.

Frank Asmus of Evansville was a business caller here last week.

Mrs. William Huggett and children of Janesville spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGinnity.

Mrs. J. R. Harvey has returned from visiting her sisters in Chicago.

Mr. Hines of Evansville was a caller here last week.

George Gooch has purchased the property just west of Mrs. Louise Svertholm's home, and will move to town in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cochrane of Janesville were callers here Saturday.

Mrs. Blodgett has sold her home to Miss Mayne Langdon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Evans of Janesville called on relatives here Friday.

The Ladies' Aid of the Christian church will meet in the church basement all day Thursday.

The hall on Saturday evening was a decided success in every sense of the word. Owing to the fact that it had been advertised in the Gazette, the hall was filled to capacity.

The play was given by home talent and each enacted well their part. The proceeds of the evening will apply on the expense incurred in the remodeling of the hall.

Clarence Owen and wife have a new touring car.

Raymond Snyder has gone to Rockford where he will work the coming winter.

A. W. Buck and family were over from Dayton, Sunday.

E. G. Lowry, wife and two sons, Ross and Kenneth, and Charles Stewart of Janesville were guests at the home of F. R. Lowry, Sunday.

Mrs. Will Drew is entertaining her nieces, the Misses Margaret and Mabel McGinnity, of Janesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grimm and two children of Beloit, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Topp of Center visited at the home of Joe Day, Sunday.

Clifford Owen's many friends are glad he is on the gain.

The social given in the basement on Thursday evening of last week by the "Ladies' Aid of the Christian church" was a decided success. The walls were profusely decorated with pumpkins and black cats. On the tables were placed autumn leaves and Jack-o'-lanterns.

In the center of the room was a huge pumpkin filled with apples to which all had free access. Several readings were given, interspersed with music. Games were played by both old and young, light refreshments were served and all report a grand, good time. To add to the amusement, upon the arrival of the guests the "witch" greeted them at the outside door with a cordial, "cold" handshake, and at the inside door the "spook" gave them a shary and pointed hand-shake and ushered them into the audience room. This gave much merriment among the young people. The ladies wish to thank Roy Gooch, who kindly gave some very fine selections on his phonograph. This was the first of a series of social gatherings which have been planned for the winter. Do not miss them.

The monthly sacred concert given on Sunday evening was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. These concerts are planned to be a help as well as a source of amusement for the young people and are free to all, and all who are willing to be helped. Last evening Mr. Spencer favored the audience with a song, "Trust in Providence," and notwithstanding the fact that he is upwards of eighty years old, his voice rang out clear and strong, so that every word could be distinctly heard. A new feature was also added, viz., singing of a male quartet, which was pleasing to all.

Civil Case: The civil action case of Fred Buskirk vs. W. B. Austin and Emil Nitcher was adjourned with the attorney's consent in the municipal court this morning.

GREEN ENGINE HAND CAUSE OF ACCIDENT TO ENGINE CLEANER

John O'Hara Badly Squeezed Last Night at Coal Chute Near Milwaukee Roundhouse

The attempt of a novice to operate a locomotive at the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway roundhouse yard about 11 o'clock last night resulted in serious, though not fatal injury to John O'Hara, a fire cleaner. O'Hara is confined to a ward at Mercy hospital as the result of the accident. O'Hara and another helper had moved the engine into position on the coal track preparatory to loading the tender. O'Hara mounted this section and pulled down the chute. He stood between the hinged incline and the edge of the roof of the engine cab. It was necessary to move the engine to secure an even distribution of the coal. The man in the car threw on the air to start the locomotive. He evidently gave a little too much. As the engine backed, O'Hara was unable to escape the trap made by the chute and the edge of the cab roof. When the locomotive was finally brought to a standstill O'Hara was badly injured. He had been twisted and wrenched and otherwise hurt. The left side of his head was contused and badly swollen. He suffered from a concussion of the brain. Four inches long on the lower portion of the back O'Hara was rushed to Mercy hospital and his injuries dressed. Today he was reported to be in a satisfactory condition. The cause of the accident he stated that the man in the cab was unaccustomed to the handling of locomotives and that as he, O'Hara, pulled down the coal chute, the pseudo engineer permitted the engine to back up, crushing him between the cab and the chute. He was unconscious when aid arrived.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES.
The selection of delegates to the next national conventions of any of the political parties will not be haphazard affairs, but the result of carefully selected delegates chosen at primaries in at least eighteen of the states of the Union. As far as that goes the number of delegates, at least for the republican convention, will be cut down materially. For instance, there will be but nine hundred and ninety-two delegates against one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight. This is under the new party rules. Taking into consideration that four hundred and ninety-seven votes, or a majority, will be chosen, it will be easily seen on looking at the table below of the primary states, they command the situation, in fact have seventy-seven more votes than needed, if all the delegates thus chosen were for the same candidate. With the primaries coming in the spring and if there are but a few candidates on the republican ticket, it will be pretty easy to figure who will be the nominee and how many votes he will command. Of course combinations and deals will be made, but even at that it will be a pretty safe venture to guess right who will be the standard-bearer of the G. O. P. Thus far this primary system has only had the read advantage of stimulating the favorite sons. A state feels obliged to vote for their own state candidate, a bit of personal pride, perhaps, and the result is that these states will have a delegation tied up to their own candidate and the real purport of giving the people of the United States as a whole, the right of choosing their presidential candidate is lost sight of in the personal ambition of the favorite son. It has worked out that way in the past. This state is a bright and shining example of the plan. The delegates thus choosing their presidential candidate, will go to the convention, vote for the favorite son of their state or some neighboring one and then when they are eliminated, will vote as they see fit regardless of any instructions. The Chicago Tribune, in discussing this situation, says that, "Where two or three candidates are to the forefront in a vigorous intra-party contest, a presidential preference primary might tend to secure a better registration of the party will than under the old system. But where there is a large field and the primary itself stimulates that condition—the convention becomes of necessity a second-choice affair and the will of the rank and file has no better medium than it had before."

Now, taking the table of the states holding primaries provided can figure it all out for yourselves if you know who the favorite sons are. If not, you will have to wait until next May to decide who is going to be the republican candidate when the national convention really meets. The table is as follows:

States.	Dates of Primaries.	Electors.
California	May 9, 1916	26
Illinois	April 9, 1916	58
Indiana	March 9, 1916	58
Iowa	April 10, 1916	30
Maryland	May 1, 1916	18
Massachusetts	April 25, 1916	36
Michigan	April 3, 1916	39
Minnesota	March 14, 1916	24
Nebraska	April 1, 1916	16
New Jersey	May 23, 1916	28
New York	April 1, 1916	88
North Dakota	March 21, 1916	10
Ohio	May 9, 1916	48
Oregon	April 21, 1916	10
Pennsylvania	May 16, 1916	10
South Dakota	June 6, 1916	10
West Virginia	June 6, 1916	16
Wisconsin	April 4, 1916	26

With primary bills pending in the Vermont and Alabama legislatures, and with public sentiment in their favor, it is probable that this number will be increased to twenty before the year is over.

RAILROAD SAFETY.
The Safety First campaign is making its impression in the railroad offices. Formerly the advertising agencies used to talk about fine scenery, luxurious cars, fast trains. Now they are beginning to realize that safety is mighty good publicity work.
A western railroad recently published its annual report. It was able to show that it carried 8,951,374 passengers during its last fiscal year. And it didn't kill a single one. This is splendid advertising.
The average American is a reckless person. He takes chances impulsively, on the spur of the moment. He dislikes to seem timid. But afterward, he thinks it over, and concludes that he won't take such risks again.
The chances of railroad accident are not bad at all. They are very deter people from going where they want to. But take a man setting out on a journey and give him choice of two routes, each equally direct. Let one be over a road with a clean accident record, the other over a line that has had disasters. Nine out of ten, perhaps 99 per cent, will choose the road with the good record.

Safety is something the railroad magnates should work on every minute. A veteran railroad man was speaking the other day about a certain road that has a good record, though not notable for fast trains or luxurious service. He was asked how this line kept up its safety standard.
"Well," he said, "I think it's because the head men are out on the line all the time. They let their subordinates handle business details, and they just live in cabs and cabooses, and hang around switches and junctions. They know every foot of track and every man on the road. If there is loose work going on, they know it. The headless man gets a stiff caution or is dropped. No wheel chair superintendent can beat that kind of operation."
It is worth good money to a road to make this kind of record. It can afford to pay very high for rigid, intelligent supervision of this kind.

The veterans of the first Wisconsin regiment of Spanish war fame laugh at the citizen soldiery equipped for a few weeks each year and would put the nation in a state of preparedness by actually raising troops. These doughty veterans feel they can talk as all they had to fight was typhoid fever and flies at Jacksonville in "Ninety Eight."

Now that the president has placed his seal of approval upon matrimony any young man earning seventy thousand a year can marry with safety, and not have to ask for charity the first year of his married life, either.

If everything planned is carried out per schedule, Uncle Sam is going to have a model naval and army equipment by 1925. European nations please note and do not plan any attacks until we are ready. It will not be fair. As for Japan. Beware!

Brown sugar for dressing wounds is recommended by the surgeons in the European war. Evidently there is a great future for the sugar trust across the Atlantic yet.

Uncle Sam does not usually pay much attention to the foreign spy, but when this visitor to our shores plots murder, then it is time to call a halt with capital letters.

Germany and its preparedness, as regards the allies, reminds one of the story of the man who was arranging to blow some powdered borax down his horse's throat but the horse blew first.

It is a decided shock to learn that it was a railway president down in Texas who defeated a whole company of Mexican bandits, and not a dozen or so sturdy Texan rangers.

Probably some of the opposition press bureaus originated that story about President Wilson having a fine tenor voice when you get down to the bottom of it.

Britain with admirable foresight of taking a hindsight, is now investigating the reasons for their failure to capture the Dardanelles by the English forces.

What has become of that hired man who used to eat twenty flannel cakes and a pound or so of country sausage and wash them down with hot steaming coffee after milking and doing the early chores in the morning?

Ducks are slow in flying south this year and have no consideration at all for the men who must hunt them now or not at all. Perhaps you know what they are doing though, after all.

Foreign gentlemen who plot against the United States evidently do not believe there is any danger in the old buzz saw after all.

Strategists are of the opinion that the longest way around may, after all, be the shortest way to Constantinople, after all.

SNAP SHOTS

Fiction shows steady improvement. Very few of the current novels present a beautiful Indian maiden as the heroine of the tale.

Pride, as we understand the word, is a woman's expression of joy in her first baby.

Tank Beverly has a good word for the safety razor. He says it doesn't talk football.

Inez Haynes Gilmore wants to know if women should propose. Well, that, we believe, is the custom.

What, by the way, has become of the old-fashioned woman visitor who brought a few jars of fruit with her?

The Modocs have been permitted to return to their old home in the lava beds of California. This indicates that the white men have been unable to operate the lava beds at a profit.

The farmer continues to be misrepresented. A current magazine referring to the "pecky" corn. No farmer says "pecky." It is a town word used almost exclusively by women.

There is as yet no law to prevent a man sitting cross legged, but that is about the only privilege the men have left.

The international Bible students say hell doesn't exist. If a theory is pleasing, not many of us take the trouble to inquire whether it is sound.

The prize-fight often is stopped by the police, but the orator generally is allowed to ramble along to the end of his speech.

If the "straw" vote shows your candidate running second it is a very foolish and inconclusive proceeding.

The Daily Novelette

The Kiss.
For weeks we had the fields of dew; We sat beneath the bough,
We had our fun, but that is done, And summer passes now.
He was dancing a waltz with her when he proposed into her left ear in perfect time and was accepted.
Skillfully he danced her into a corner screened by potted ham vines.
They kissed.
The music of a one-step—"Evergreen Pickles" it was—started and continued, but still the magic thrall of that first kiss held them in oblivious bondage.
A fox trot struck up, the witching "Two's a Crowd."
Another one-step, "Merciless Murphy," and a waltz, "Baby Mine," followed in due course.
But still behind the potted ham trees the kissers remained in their blissful trance.
Three more one-steps, two in-steps, arched waltz, two more fox trots, and then there was a sound of departing guests, and then the lights went out.
At six o'clock the next morning they were startled by the janitor, who in the dim light thought it was a statue he was dusting!
Heigh-ho!

ROY K. MOULTON

An Occupation Gone.
Say, what has become of the old-fashioned gink?
Who used to loiter round the old-fashioned store,
Whose brilliance made all of his listeners blink
When he told of the battles in wartime of yore?

At present he isn't quite up to the job.
As "expert" in war for that present affair.
Has certainly with all the theories raised hob,
And all of the "experts" are up in the air.

A Bald Fact.
Now Rockefeller says he hopes
For universal peace;
He says he's happy making oil
As well as axle grease.
But still he can't be happy quite,
Although a billionaire.
There's just one oil he cannot make,
The kind that will grow hair.

Uncle Abner.
Ambrose Fletcher solved the great problem of perpetual motion the other day, after laboring upon it for many years. It was in the shape of a ball which swings back and forth regularly and tirelessly, being propelled by a sort of clock-work mechanism. There is only one drawback to this solution of the old problem. He has to wind the machinery every eight days. There is always something wrong. Isn't there? As soon as Ambrose gets it so it will run without winding, he will have the problem definitely solved.

About 90 per cent of the artistic temperament we hear so much about is laziness.

The Old Man Says:
"Lem Hoover ran into Uncle Billy Bruhl up at the races, and Lem says that Uncle Billy had been under heavy fire all evening. His left wing was restin' on the west bank of the Bug river, and his right was extended as far as Limberg, and barrin' his ben' outflanked, in another twenty-four hours he was about ready to start a big drive in the Champagne district."

The Idol Smashers.
(Historians are beginning to tell tales about one very popular idol. They have lifted the shroud from the private lives of so many old statesmen and have attempted to shatter so many ideals of late that it is getting to be a national scandal.)

They tell us that John Hancock almost served a term in jail, and that he had to hustle round a lot to fix his bail.

They say that our George Washington rode out nights in a back, and that he never hit that cheery tree a whack.

They say he bought the Indians and paid 'em off in rum.
And down the gay and festive pike he used to ramble some.
They say he dodged his taxes and that sometimes he co could swear.

In fact they've knocked him something fierce and laid his secrets bare.

They've tried to pull the kuelus from the brow of Paul Revere; They say a hobby was the only horse he ever was near.

They've dug up family skeletons and held them to the light of day; They say that Lafayette flunked out and was afraid to fight.
They say Pat Henry didn't speak on "Liberty and Death,"
And that Dr. Frank often had bad dreams on his breath.
But let them tell their funny tales; We really must allow,
These eminence historians have got to live somehow.

Where Editors Are Protected.
Down at Dadeville, theother day, Frank Clifton, in a heated argument with the editor of a little paper at that place, characterized the literary luminary as a leatherhead. This enraged the molder of public thought and he caused the arrest of Clifton. The matter was taken before a justice of the peace, where Clifton, $1 and costs. Being without funds, Clifton was sent to jail—Cass Co. (Mo.) Leader.

EIGHTY-SEVEN THOUSAND ANIMALS ARE KILLED IN CANCER INVESTIGATIONS

Washing Won't Rid Head Of Dandruff
The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.
You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

THE CELLAR IS NO PLACE FOR FOODS

Some people keep their food in the cellar during the winter because they think it is an extravagance to continue ice. These are the people we are offering free ice to.

Yes, the cellar is the place—not to keep foods. It's fine for coal and ashes. A good place to do the family washing. But a mighty poor ice-box. And, oh, the walking up and down. Six times each way every day, twelve trips. Eighty-four trips each week. Two thousand three hundred and four trips in six months. Just think of it. By the sweat of your brow and the pain in your limbs you shall earn your daily bread? No, father, the cellar is no place for your food for nine distinct reasons, any one of which would be sufficient.

Use our ice during the winter and keep that reliable and convenient ice box in operation. It will save you money and labor or you can get your money back next spring.

LITTLE GIRL DIES FROM BULLET WOUND

Elma Barth, Aged Twelve Years, Killed Playing With Loaded Gun at Farm House Near Monroe.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Monroe, Wis., Nov. 2.—Elma Barth, the twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Barth residing on the Hend farm, about a mile and one-half southeast of this city, passed away from a bullet wound which was accidentally inflicted on Sunday. Shortly after the noon hour Sunday, a brother, Emil Barth, announced his intention of hunting rabbits and left the house with a 22 calibre rifle. He decided to return to the house for his coat and set the rifle in a corner of the room and ascended the stairs, not taking the trouble to remove the cartridge in the belief that the weapon would be safe until he returned.

Adolph Aeschliman, seven-year-old son of Mrs. Bertha Aeschliman, of this city, who had been visiting at the Barth home, picked up the gun and in some manner it was discharged. It is not known just how the accident happened, only children being present at the time and all of them being so small that they were unable to give a clear account of how it happened.

The bullet struck the little girl in the abdomen, penetrating the stomach, and severing the large arteries. Besides the parents, the little girl is survived by four brothers and one sister. The funeral will be held on Wednesday.

TRACE HOOF PLAGUE TO CHOLERA SERUM

Department of Agriculture Issues a Statement As to Origin of Recent Epidemic in Illinois.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—An official statement in regard to the recent re-appearance in northern Illinois of the foot and mouth disease after it had been apparently stamped out early in the year, was issued today by the United States Department of Agriculture. From this statement it appears that the outbreak has now been definitely traced to an anti-hog cholera serum prepared from the blood of hogs infected with foot and mouth disease, but showing at the time the serum was manufactured no symptoms of the contagion.

According to the statement, the serum was thoroughly tested before it was permitted to be placed upon the market, and the tests failed to reveal any evidence of contamination. After the recurrence of the disease in Illinois, samples of the serum were tested again and again by the Department of Agriculture and also tested by the United States Public Health Service. It was not until the sixth second animal used in the tests had been inoculated with the serum, however, that the bacteriologists of the department were able to produce any symptoms of foot and mouth disease.

The department statement reports that experiments are now being vigorously prosecuted with a view to discovering a means of treating serum at the time of its manufacture which would actually kill the virus of foot and mouth disease. The results so far attained are promising and the department hopes that a successful method will be evolved shortly. In the meantime all the infected serum in the hands of one Chicago serum company has been destroyed without compensation. All other serum manufactured in Chicago, which it was believed might contain possibilities of danger, has likewise been destroyed. Furthermore, the department is prohibiting the shipment of any serum from licensed establishments in the districts that are under quarantine for foot and mouth disease.

SAM BERNARD IS A DISAPPOINTMENT

"Poor Schmaltz" is Not up to High Standard Set by Paramount.

"Poor Schmaltz," featuring the mighty Sam Bernard with his characteristic oddities was a distinct disappointment to the patrons of the Apollo yesterday who have been used to the high class picture plays usually presented by Paramount. The picture might be suited for a Charley Chaplin but slap stick comedy is beneath the reputation of the Famous Players who produced it. As a stage actor Sam Bernard carries his audience with him but it is plain to be seen that we are not all fitted for the screen.

"Flight of a Night Bird."
Every day the power of the mighty Universal is shown in addition to our banner roll of popular stars. Hobart Henley is now on the Coast playing leads opposite Cleo Madison, and, as usual he is there with the punch stuff. The fans will go wild over this clever film as it gives two of their biggest favorites a wonderful chance to do some real acting.

"The $50,000 Jewel Theft."
An absorbing detective play based on an actual happening, according to the leader. Murdock MacQuarrie featured, appearing as an aged detective who successfully works on the case of a startling robbery. His methods and those of his crooks are enacted in a style productive of great suspense. In support appear Adele Farrington, Edna Payne and Arthur Moore. The scenario was prepared by George Edwards Hall and Mr. MacQuarrie.

Grenfell Lorry, a wealthy young American, meets a beautiful girl on the coast of Spain enroute to Washington. He falls in love with her, a girl who is a princess. He is a great lover and follows her to Edgewood in Graustark, her home. On the way he meets an old college friend, Harry Anghuish, and they make the journey together.

Lorry and Anghuish overhear a plot to abduct Princess Yvette. They enter the castle and Lorry is amazed to find his old friend, Harry Anghuish, is the princess. He saves her from the ruffians.

Two suitors clamor for the hand of the princess. Prince Lorenz of Apheland and his father, Prince of Daberg. Graustark must pay enormous war indemnity to Apheland. Marriage to Lorenz grants Yvette an extension of time to meet the payment. Failure to do so means the signing away of almost her principality. Lorry's love for the girl determines him to save her. He and Anghuish are certain that Prince Gabriel was the man who plotted to abduct Yvette.

That night, Prince Lorenz, intoxicated, insults Yvette and is knocked down. Lorry, a duel is arranged, but Lorenz is not to claim his bed. Lorry is accused of the murder and is imprisoned. Yvette aids him to escape. Prince Bolazor, father of Lorenz, offers Yvette extension of time for paying the debt if Lorry is captured and executed.

Gabriel presses his offer of marriage. Yvette orders him from the castle. Lorry gains entrance to the castle and surprises Yvette in her boudoir. He swears he will give himself up for execution and save her kingdom.

Gabriel accuses Yvette of concealing Lorry.

She declares her love for Lorry and begs Bolazor for mercy. Bolazor refuses and demands Lorry's death. Anghuish accuses Gabriel of Lorenz's murder and Gabriel confesses. Bolazor then makes an alliance with Graustark. Lorry weds the princess and is crowned.

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Eternal City Tonight."
The two features that seem likely to be most talked about in the screen version of "The Eternal City" at the Apollo theatre tonight are the exterior and interior, and the surprising fine acting of Pauline Frederick as the much-harassed Donna Roma.

Whatever influence the film promoters may have brought to bear it was enough to gain entrance for their directors and their actors into some of the most attractive rooms and gardens in the ancient city, and this is a mystery just how the mass meeting in the Coliseum and the marches of the mobs and soldiers to and from it, sometimes suggest days of the night twilight, and occasionally are forced to admit that the effects gained are pictorially impressive.

Probably no one expected Miss Frederick to fail in this, her first experience as a picture star, but it seems equally to be doubted that any one expected her to prove so unusually clever in the work. Some of her early scenes in "The Eternal City" are more effective in emotional value than many of her performances have been on the legitimate stage. Playing opposite her is Thomas Holding, and Fuller Mielich, Frank Louie, George Majeroni and Macy Harlan are also in the picture.

For a moment Sandry forgot the business of the present in watching her face, as he always did when any new emotion touched her. Now he saw her lips part a trifle and her eyes widen with amazement, and he knew that for the first time she beheld and recognized womanly beauty in its perfection.

She did not speak but leaned against the door-jamb drinking in this apparition. In the little pause that fell presently she turned to the old lady. "Yes, mother," she said softly, "please do."

The stranger flashed a brilliant glance at her, and with an inimitably pretty gesture reached out a gloved hand and patted her arm, bare under the rolled-up sleeve.

"Mr. Sandry," called John Daily, standing on the foot-log, "will ye come down here a minute?"

"Silez," said Ma, when the glittering guest had been shut away in Sandry's little south room, "what for do you want we should keep her?"

"Why—I don't know, mother," said the girl simply, "only she's too beautiful to let go. She looks like the sun on snow."

"Yes, Yes, I think she does," returned Ma inscrutably, "and she's about as cold and false."

As Sandry joined his foreman he saw that something had ruffled the usually placid temper of the slow giant.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"Hampton of the Yella Pines is in the office," said Daily sharply, "and from his looks he's got something nasty up his sleeve."

"Oh, yes—Hampton—he's one of the owners, isn't he?"

The two men walked back to the office and found, seated in the swing chair, with his feet on Sandry's desk, a short, square man with a face and manner which set Sandry on edge at once.

sharp eyes into narrow slits. "Yes?" said Sandry coldly. "It's about that track o' stumpage you're slashin' your log-trail across."

"Yes?" said Sandry again. "What about the track? It isn't specially good and we're leaving it. Intend to cross it and cut into the East Belt."

There was a slight tone of satisfaction in his voice, for the East Belt stumpage was a little the best thing in all this magnificent timber country, and the eyes of the Yellow Pines people had been on it enviously for years, according to John Daily.

"Just so, just so," said Hampton. "Only I'm afraid we'll have to stop your operations, Mr. Sandry. The fact is, we've just bought this tract, and as it comprises two hundred and fifty acres, and is in the form of a narrow strip runnin' north an' south, it will effectively keep you out o' the East Belt—unless, o' course, you should buy it of us."

For a moment Sandry regarded the speaker in mild astonishment. "You must be mistaken, Mr. Hampton," he said; "all the stumpage for five miles north and east is our property, with options on every privately owned section for another seven miles in both directions. And this tract you speak of lies within a mile and a half of camp. You are suffering under a hallucination."

Sandry smiled coldly. "If you will take the trouble to look up the records in the state land office at Salem," returned Hampton smoothly, "you'll find that I'm in my right mind, all right. This tract has been duly filed on under the homestead law by one T. J. O'Connell, and sold by him last week to the Yella Pines Lumber company. Now, my young Easterner, you can't run yer log-trail across our land."

Hampton rose, his little eyes abiding with savage triumph. Sandry rose also.

"I'll neither take the trouble to go to Salem nor pay the least attention to your threats," he said, and his manner was coolly unconcerned, "and I should advise that you get this company out of your head as quickly as possible. And now good day."

He turned, as if the interview were at an end, and seated himself at the desk from which Hampton had just risen.

"By gosh, you'd better!" said the other with a snap of his heavy jaws as he strode past Daily and out of the open door.

"An' by God, we will!"

This last came in the deep boom of the foreman, who was watching the departing lumberman with the bitter enmity of years of fighting.

"Now, what do you think of that?" asked Sandry in profound disgust.

"Just what I've thought of him for years—damned spectacular bluff!"

CHAPTER IX.

Hampton and the East Belt.

In the press of business and the pleasant mulling over the whole old city of New York with Miss Ordway, Sandry forgot all about Hampton in the next few days. Ma Daily had nothing to say, keeping a grim silence, which Sandry noticed. As for Silez, she followed her with fascinated eyes whenever she appeared. Miss Ordway did not eat with the men. Her mornings were given up entirely to the incessant clicking of the typewriter in the seclusion of the little room, and she emerged after the noon hour, ate with Ma Daily and Silez, and invariably took a short walk in the afternoon.

In the evenings Sandry came in, and they sat in the empty eating room, discussing with a common knowledge that seemed to shut them apart together, the things of the great outside world. At such times Silez listened in quiet eagerness, her dark face aglow and her eyes like mysterious pools in the shadow of her heavy hair.

That week there were several arrivals at Daily's camp—well-dressed, responsible-looking business men from Portland; and before they left, Sandry had landed such an order for logs as plunged the camp into the hardest work, longest hours and highest overtime it had ever known.

Also he sent out word to Toledo that he had use for all the men he could lay hands on.

An extra crew was put to building the log trail up through the slashed opening to the East Belt, and activity characterized the hills.

The incessant shrill toots of the donkey, the scream and cough of its furry labors, the rumble and clatter of the log train, began to be music in Sandry's ears, and the letters he wrote to his father became brighter, filled with the exhilaration of accomplishment.

For a day or two the work went forward finely and the new logs of the fresh-laid trail gleamed white against the green of the mountain. Then Collin, sent into the uncut timber ahead to blaze for further operations, returned to the works in double-quick time.

"John," he said to the foreman, for none of the men would award Sandry the right of consultation unless it was unavoidable, even yet, so distinct and deep-rooted was their aversion to the Easterner and his rawness; "John, they's a new homesteader's shack settin' square across the trail."

"The hell you say! Hampton!"

The logger nodded. The purport of Hampton's visit had been freely spread in the camp.

Daily turned to Sandry. "They's a new cabin settin' across our trail up in the track between here'n the East Belt, Mr. Sandry. Let's go up an' take a look at it," he said.

"I guess Hampton's pushin' his bluff."

With a surge of anger Sandry turned abruptly, and the two men struck up the new trail.

"I'll have to settle that man, Daily."

"No—that strip was part of the East Belt. The company bought it four year ago from a busted speculator, who sold 'em first the north stumpage an' then this at a sacrifice price. That's why Hampton's always ben so sore over it. He wanted it himself. Stafford, the speculator's name was. A smooth man from the East. There was some hitch about titles—specially about this here strip, an' the deal hung fire for some time an' Hampton danced a war dance, he was so blame anxious to knock it, but old Frazer bent him to it an' won out. Finally it was settled an' the strip came under the East Belt deed."

"I've started a ten-cent box for Christmas, dear," said the better half. "You won't forget it, will you?"

"No, I won't," replied the other fraction. "Why—how can you say such a thing? Of course I won't forget it."

And he didn't. The very next day he shook four dimes out of the box to meet a deficiency in his carfare allowance.

The little boy had brought home perfect school reports for several weeks and then his marks suddenly took a tremendous slump. His father viewed the last one in evident disapproval.

"How is this son?" he asked. "Teacher's fault," said the boy. "Now is it the teacher's fault?"

"She moved the little boy that sat next to me."

Jenkins had ceased to complain, but one evening his troubles as a straphanger got so bad that he felt bound to expostulate.

"Excuse me, sir," he said to the man sitting by him, "but would you mind moving your portmanteau from the gangway? I really can hardly find room to stand."

"Move my portmanteau!" gasped the stranger. "Those, sir, are my said the owner; "has he been doing such things ever since the two companies have been rivals?"

"Pretty much. Sometimes we've been doin' 'em," returned Daily grimly. Sandry laughed.

"Well, you Westerners believe in fixing things first-hand, anyway, which helps some."

Far up in the heavy timber they came into a small natural clearing some 200 feet in extent, set like a hole amid the solid bulk of the close-crowding pines. In the center was a tiny log shack, shake-roofed, without doors or windows, the very least a man might do in grudging compliance with the homestead law. They looked at it from all sides, noticed a few blazes on the nearest trees, read a clumsily executed trespass notice, and returned to camp.

"And us with our big contract with the Portland Lumber mills!" said Sandry. "I begin to see. Daily, you gather out ten men and go up and take that shack to pieces just as quick as you know how. Don't leave a trace. Bring the timbers away and start felling from that end to meet the trail."

As the foreman went among the men picking his crew, Sandry turned down across the slough toward the office. Once settled at his desk, he took out the records of the Dillingworth company and began a systematic search for word of the narrow tract of hill and timber between the camp and the fine East Belt.

When Daily returned at quitting time to report the demolition of the cabin and the start of the new cutting, he had found nothing.

"That's strange," he said uneasily. "Are these all the records, Daily? Has anything ever been destroyed? I can find nothing bearing on this piece of land, and yet the statement turned over to me by Frazer distinctly says that everything from the southwest section corner here at the camp within a radius of five miles north and east belongs to us, with numbers, and all data. What does this Hampton mean, and what sort of a tract is this strip? I see no mention made of it."

That's why Hampton's always ben so sore over it. He wanted it himself. Stafford, the speculator's name was. A smooth man from the East. There was some hitch about titles—specially about this here strip, an' the deal hung fire for some time an' Hampton danced a war dance, he was so blame anxious to knock it, but old Frazer bent him to it an' won out. Finally it was settled an' the strip came under the East Belt deed."

Dinner Stories

"I've started a ten-cent box for Christmas, dear," said the better half. "You won't forget it, will you?"

"No, I won't," replied the other fraction. "Why—how can you say

such a thing? Of course I won't forget it."

And he didn't. The very next day he shook four dimes out of the box to meet a deficiency in his carfare allowance.

The little boy had brought home perfect school reports for several weeks and then his marks suddenly took a tremendous slump. His father viewed the last one in evident disapproval.

"How is this son?" he asked. "Teacher's fault," said the boy. "Now is it the teacher's fault?"

"She moved the little boy that sat next to me."

Jenkins had ceased to complain, but one evening his troubles as a straphanger got so bad that he felt bound to expostulate.

As the foreman went among the men picking his crew, Sandry turned down across the slough toward the office. Once settled at his desk, he took out the records of the Dillingworth company and began a systematic search for word of the narrow tract of hill and timber between the camp and the fine East Belt.

When Daily returned at quitting time to report the demolition of the cabin and the start of the new cutting, he had found nothing.

"That's strange," he said uneasily. "Are these all the records, Daily? Has anything ever been destroyed? I can find nothing bearing on this piece of land, and yet the statement turned over to me by Frazer distinctly says that everything from the southwest section corner here at the camp within a radius of five miles north and east belongs to us, with numbers, and all data. What does this Hampton mean, and what sort of a tract is this strip? I see no mention made of it."

"No—that strip was part of the East Belt. The company bought it four year ago from a busted speculator, who sold 'em first the north stumpage an' then this at a sacrifice price. That's why Hampton's always ben so sore over

ORDER OF THE COURT

ENTIRE

$25,000.00 STOCK

OF THE

McNAMARA HARDWARE STORE

202-204 West Milwaukee Street, Janesville, Wis.,

TO BE SOLD OUT

The COURT has so ordered it and now this magnificent high grade stock of Hardware is to be sold to settle the estate. Just think what this means to the citizens of Janesville and Rock County. Sale will positively begin on next

Saturday, November 6th, and Continue Until Saturday, November 20th, Inclusive

Not one item in this mammoth stock will be reserved--all to go. To accomplish the result in a hurry, the Court has authorized the MACOMBER SALES COMPANY, of Minneapolis, Minn. to dispose of the stock in double quick time.

Never in its history will the people of Rock County have the opportunity of purchasing needed goods at such a tremendous sacrifice. The MACOMBER SALES COMPANY are noted for their heavy bargain giving and will apply the Axe all along the line. Administrator says to spare nothing so the prices will be knocked to smithereens.

It is utterly impossible for us to price this enormous stock, as there are no less than 100,000 different items contained in it, but we shall attempt to give a partial cut-price list commencing tomorrow evening in The Gazette to give you an idea of what this sale will mean to you. A large force of extra clerks will be on hand to wait on the crowds.

SALE POSITIVELY COMMENCES NEXT SATURDAY, NOV. 6th
